V Winter School in International Perspectives on Education Policy (IPEP) RESEARCHING GLOBAL CITIZENSHIP EDUCATION

5th-10th February 2023

University of Verona (Italy)
Department of Human Sciences

This Winter School considers theories and methods relevant across the field of educational policy research, with a focus on Global Citizenship Education.

Lectures and discussions on theories and methods will be supplemented with hands-on experience on education policy analysis. During the Winter School, all students will be involved in a small case study on global citizenship education, facilitated by fieldwork, and joint data analysis. This approach has proved very successful in the past years, where we have had participants from all over the world, who have been particularly pleased with its strongly practice-based character.

IPEP provides participants with an opportunity to learn about, and discuss:

- The nature and the role of 'theory' in the understanding of educational policy
- The relationship between global, national, and institutional policy and governance in education
- The strengths and limits of document analysis, discourse analysis and educational ethnography to investigate education policy
- Current understandings and policy on global citizenship education, their consequences, and educational responses to them
- Urgent education policy issues in the countries represented by the participants

IPEP stems from co-operation between the co-founders of the International Research Centre for Global and Comparative Policy Studies on the Education and Learning of Adults (IRC-GloCoPoS). IPEP 2023 is run in collaboration with the UNESCO Chair in Global Citizenship Education in Higher Education at the University of Bologna.

IPEP Faculty

Marcella Milana (University of Verona)
Annette Rasmussen (Aalborg University)
Palle Rasmussen (Aalborg University)
Paolo Landri (CNR-Irpps)
Massimiliano Tarozzi (Unesco Chair GCE Higher Education, University of Bologna)
Paola Berbeglia (Concord Europe)

Who can apply

Advanced master students, PhD students, postdoctoral fellows and researchers of policy in all areas of education.

Expected costs

Enrollment is free of charge. Participants should cover their own travel and accommodation costs, as well as all lunches and dinners.

ESREA Travel Bursary

The European Society for Research on the Education of Adults (ESREA) will provide up to 4 travel bursaries of € 300 for PhD students (or equivalent) who will be attending the IPEP Winter School 2023.

The ESREA Travel Bursaries are awarded based on the quality of the application, country representation, and attention to diversity, and are intended to support costs for travel, accommodation and other living expenses (e.g. lunches and dinners).

The bursary recipients are required to provide ESREA with evidence of what the bursary was spent on, after the event. In order to be considered eligible to apply for an ESREA Travel Bursary applicants must be an individual or institutional ESREA member (to join ESREA or renew your membership, please click here). Interested applicants must apply for ESREA Bursary in the application form.
